Library Goals

A Public Library is a community institution which collects, organizes, preserves, and disseminates materials which the community itself perceives to be important. A Public Library belongs equally to every person in the community.

The function of a Public Library is to provide impartial access to information, ideas, literature, and other aspects of culture in a form and at an intellectual level appropriate to each individual's needs.

By doing so a Public Library becomes a focus for its community, reflecting its values and preserving its identity.

THE AIM OF THE KENORA PUBLIC LIBRARY IS

- To provide a comfortable, permanent library which is open at times consistent with the needs of the community, which is accessible to everyone, and staffed by friendly, knowledgeable people.
- To support and protect the principle of intellectual freedom and the right to read.
- To provide opportunities for groups to meet and discuss.
- To make information readily available to the community by providing adequate resources within the library and/or by linking the user to appropriate external sources of information.
- To supply current material representing a variety of opinions, contemporary community information, a local history collection, government documents and balanced political information.

- To provide opportunities for the self-fulfilment of the individual by fostering the love of knowledge, culture, literature, and libraries, particularly among children.
- To offer programs which stimulate the sharing of ideas and opinions and that compliment formal and informal education programs.
- To foster an atmosphere of warmth and comfort for all our patrons.
- To inform the community of the resources and services available in the library and to actively encourage the widest possible use of resources and services.

The Board also addresses ongoing and short-term goals for the library through a strategic planning process.
